When SDNY called Schonfeld, it was public record he stood accused by a third party (ButterflyMX) of orchestrating the fraudulent transfer of MVI's assets in response to GateGuard's lawsuit v. MVI. So much so that ButterflyMX subpoenaed Schonfeld's privileged communications with MVI (under crime-fraud exception). See attached docs from ButterflyMX case (GateGuard referenced on p. 2 of first doc).

I don't know if this context bears (directly) on whether SDNY should have disclosed information received from Schonfeld. But, at minimum, it establishes he was publicly working to undermine GateGuard's claims vs. MVI (to the point of engaging in potentially unlawful conduct).
